The Pacific Northwest Conference of the Free Methodist Church is seeking a co-vocational Lead Pastor for Light & Life Community Church, located in Hoquiam, Washington. This small but deeply loving congregation is Christ-centered, Spirit-filled, and grounded in Scripture.

With an average Sunday attendance of approximately 40 people, Light & Life is a church marked by genuine care, faithful service, and a desire to grow in both spiritual depth and community impact. The congregation is aging and recognizes the need to engage younger families and revitalize its ministry for future generations.

Due to financial limitations, this position requires a co-vocational pastor—someone who is called to ministry and able to sustain additional employment outside the church. The ideal candidate will have a heart for the Hoquiam area, a missional mindset, and a passion for intergenerational ministry.

About Hoquiam:

Nestled along the Washington coast, Hoquiam is a historic logging town with a population of around 8,500. It shares a close-knit community with neighboring Aberdeen, offering access to the Pacific Ocean, Olympic National Park, and Grays Harbor. The area is known for its natural beauty, resilient spirit, and rich cultural heritage.

Candidate Expectations:

In the PNWC, we believe that every church should:

- Show evidence of Spirit-aliveness
- Multiply disciples who make disciples
- Develop and mentor leaders
- Multiply churches as part of its ethos, regardless of size

Applicants should:

- Be ready to thrive in a co-vocation role.
- Be theologically Wesleyan and aligned with Free Methodist values.
